Purchasing a legal malpractice policy is an important investment for your law firm. In doing so, you have a few decisions to make, including the amount and type of the deductible and policy limits, and prior acts coverage. You also need to know what risks are encompassed in the legal malpractice policy and what risks are outside that policy so you can decide if you need other policies for those risks, such as a policy for cyber liability, premises liability, employment liability, and dishonesty of employees. The panel will discuss real-life scenarios, including the claim process from notice to resolution, to bring home the importance of these issues.
